COUNTY COMMISSIONERS ARE STILL MUCH AT SEA

Will Open Bids But Are Undecided Just How to Proceed

ASPHALTUM MAY BE TR

Costs Too Much to Keep Up Roads By Old System --Law is Drawn

The county commissioners will open and tabulate bids on a number of county roads tomorrow. They are considerably at sea in regard to the proposition as several of the stretches of the roads the grand jury approved on petition of the commissioners are embraced in the State Highway plan, and the county officials are somewhat leary over the political effect of handing out money for building roads which the State will build and maintain free of cost to the county. The county commissioners it is stated, have been communicating with E. M. Bigelow, State Commissioner of Highways, in the hope of getting a compromise or promise of a rebate in case the county goes ahead and builds the roads, but thus far they have gotten no satisfaction. They are now between the devil and the deep sea. If they go ahead and build the roads in the State plan it will show them up as spending the money of the county unnecessarily, and if they hold the roads up until some understanding is reached with the State, or leave them for the latter to build the communities which have been promised the construction of the roads this year will be sore and this is likely to result disastrously in the political campaign of the present board of commissioners. An effort is being made at the county seat to convey the impression to the public that the cost will not be so very great if the county goes ahead and builds the roads, and that as they are in the State plan, the Commonwealth will be obliged to take over the roads and maintain them, thus relieving the county. This would let the commissioners get out of the hole, notwithstanding the fact that the county taxpayers would be the loser, and the process might involve many complications likely to cost the county still more.

The commissioners are also asking for bids for resurfacing the Flinn roads that have already been constructed by the county. This action is but another argument why the county should have made the road improvements under the Sproul law instead of under the Flinn law. As it is the county bears the entire expense of repairing the roads, whereas under the Sproul law the State would bear part of this expense.

It is stated that the commissioners are about to try the experiment of surfacing the roads with asphaltum, as the macadam roads constructed by the county have not stood up under the natural traffic. This is not surprising, as when the county began the construction of the Flinn roads it was a political deal pure and simple, and little attention was paid to scientific principles of constructions. The roads cost so much in building that the county was unable to keep them in proper repair, and many of them were permitted to become badly worn and damaged before repairs were made, which added to the extravagance of the project and the burden of the taxpayers.

It may not be generally known that the Flinn road law by which counties can build and maintain roads exclusively, was amended at the last session of the Legislature, for the express purpose, it is stated of increasing the rate of interest on road bonds issued under provisions of the law. As Washington county is about the only other county in the State interested outside of Allegheny county, for whom the Flinn law was passed, it is asserted that the bill amending the Flinn law was drawn up at Washington, in order to permit the commissioners to make their political play on "good roads" to help their re-election along. The old Flinn law limited the interest on road bonds to four per cent and the commissioners found it difficult to sell these bonds, particularly as the law did not provide for the payment of the State tax of four mills. This latter obstacle was also removed by a bill formulated at the county seat and introduced and put through by Representative J. B. Holland. This bill gave the commissioners the power to pay the State tax of four mills on the dollar of the road bonds, and now, with the amendment to the Flinn law increasing the rate of interest on road bonds to five per cent, the interest on these bonds is increased to five and four-tenths per cent, to the county, whereas, under the old Flinn law it was only three and six-tenths per cent to the purchasers, the rate to the county being four per cent.

It was a clever scheme for the commissioners to flash the "good roads" project on the eve of the primary, which decidedly bears the ear marks of the fine Italian hand of C. E. Carothers, and it might have been pulled off without arousing any suspicion as to its object but for the comprehensive State Road plan of Governor John K. Tener. The commissioners jumped in and planned to spend $857,000 for improving roads in the county, but when it was shown that the State would spend from $3,500,000 to $4,000,000 in the county in addition to the townships being willing to spend as much more as the county under State aid, which would be obtained as quickly as the amount of expenditures by the commissioners, it was readily seen that the county taxpayers would be getting the hot end of the poker in the deal. How the commissioners will pull out of the hole they are in now remains to be seen.

WILL HAVE LOTS OF FEATURES AT PICNIC

Search to be Made for Jimmy Valentine at St. Jerome's Outing at Eldora Park on Wednesday

WOMEN TO BE IN CHARGE OF BOOTHS--GOOD PROGRAM

Final preparations were made today for the annual picnic and outing to be held Wednesday at Eldora Park by St. Jerome's church. There will be features a plenty, and a day of rare enjoyment is promised.

Special cars will convey Sunday school children to the park free of charge. These children will assemble at St. Jerome's church at 10 o'clock. Dinner and supper will be taken. One of the chief features of the day will be the search for Jimmy Valentine. This noted character for whom Pittsburghers have been searching, will be on the ground during the afternoon, and to the one who captures him, will be awarded $25 County Detective William McCleary has promised to come and aid in the search.

There will be sports in the afternoon, including a ball game between two teams from the church. All the park amusements will be running and each child will be provided with a certain number of tickets for them.

Another feature will be a baby show. A prize will be given to the baby adjudged the prettiest. M. T. Crowley is to be the chief judge. Women of the church will have booths from which all manner of things will be sold, the proceeds to go to the church fund. Dancing will be a feature of the evening. Special cars will be provided for the return trip.

Supper will be served from 5 to 8 o'clock p. m. for 50 cents. A large number of tickets have already been sold, and this feature will not be one of the mere incidentals. The ladies of the congregation have the reputation as first-class caterers, and are prepared to serve a bountiful repast. There will be "something doing" out of the ordinary all the time, and visitors will not be permitted to suffer from ennui.

CHANGE MAY BE MADE IN FIRE LIMIT BOUNDARIES

Council Will Hear Matter Discussed by Interested Persons Anyway, and Definite Action May Follow

Following a discussion at some length of the fire limit ordinance and matters pertaining to it, council Monday night at a called meeting took action to the effect that the matter of changing the limit from Third to Fourth street, and from Seventh to Sixth street would be considered Tuesday night. At this meeting all interested persons are invited and expected to be present to give expression to their sentiments on the matter.

There is an ordinance now in force which prohibits the erection of frame structures within a certain boundary. Third street is the boundary on the south and Seventh street on the north. This ordinance was passed some time ago.

The discussion Monday night was brought about by a request of Albert

Sphar who is now conducting Roley's livery barn to build an addition 36 by 30 feet at the rear of his barn. This structure was according to his plans to be constructed of frame. There was a somewhat heated discussion of the matter and then a motion was put by Councilman A. O. Davis, and seconded by Councilman C. O. Frye that the matter be laid on the table until the next meeting which will be on next Tuesday evening.

At the same time it is probable that an ordinance re-establishing the fire limits will be presented, repealing the old ordinance now in force. If it passes it will do away with a lot of contention caused by people who wish to put up frame structures within the given boundaries.

It is thought however, that such an ordinance will meet with considerable opposition.

CHARLEROI MAN FOR TREASURER

John H. Bowers Makes Formal Announcement of His Candidacy

The office of treasurer in any county is conceded by all to be one of the most important within the gift of the people. The voters of a critical mind demand that an aspirant for whom they cast their ballots shall be one whose character is unassailable, whose integrity and honesty have never been impeached and whose business ability is of the highest order. Character (and its attributes) is a prime virtue, but unless a candidate, particularly one for county treasurer, is re-inforced with business ability of the best kind he is lacking in one of the essentials and is plainly disqualified. The choosing of a man for this important office is distinctively a business proposition and should be viewed with a calm and considerate mind; casting aside petty animosities, personal dislikes and everything that

IS BACK FROM WESTERN LEAGUE

Walter Taylor returned this week from Chicago, Ill., where he has been playing the outfield with the Chicago Lelands, in the Chicago Western League. Taylor was making good, and was the clean-up man on the batting order. Trouble with the umpire in a game at Louisville, and a subsequent fine which was imposed on him, led to him quitting the team. In the league were clubs from Chicago, Louisville, Kansas City, St. Louis, West Baden, Evansville, Indiana and Columbus.

SCHOOL BOARD SETS BOND FOR THE TAX COLLECTOR

Has Mania For Running Away

Bentleyville Lad Escapes From Training School and is Sent to Morganza

Morris Rosenbloom, the eight-year-old boy of Bentleyville, formerly of Monessen, who has a mania for running away, was again in juvenile court Monday. He was taken to the Oakdale training school a week ago by Miss Christman, the probation officer. He did not remain long, slipping away and making his way to Pittsburg, remained in Pittsburg over night, then went to Monongahela and managed to reach his home at Bentleyville last Friday. He was at once taken back to the detention home. The lad was originally charged with incorrigibility. Small but bright he escaped through a window of the detention home, went to Pittsburg then to Monongahela and to Bentleyville. Judge McIlvaine sent the boy to Morganza.

Change in Effect at High School--Two Resignations Accepted

For the first time in the history of the Charleroi schools the bond of the tax collector was fixed by the school board. Monday night at an adjourned meeting. Heretofore the bond of the tax collector has been set by the judge of the county but the new school code which was passed by the last Legislature and signed by Governor Tenor, changed the law so that now it is up to the school board to place the bond as they see fit. The bond was set at $35,000.

Resignations of Prof. D. C. Willard as principal of High School and of Miss Grace Zillafro as principal of the Fifth street schools were accepted. Prof. Willard has accepted a position as principal of the New Bloomfield academy and Miss Zillafro as a principal in the Dunbar schools.

Prof. W. A. Swick was elected to the position of High School principal. He was a teacher in High School last year. There was no other teacher elected to fill that vacancy. Miss Laird was elected to fill the place left vacant by the resignation of Miss Zillafro.

Two new teachers were elected for grade positions, Miss Emma Watkins of Brownsville and Miss Edna Gibson of Washington.

A number of bills were accepted and ordered paid and reports were heard from various officials. The commission for the tax collector was set at 2 per cent on face and 5 per cent for collections made with a percent added.

STANDS BY THE PRESIDENT

Those dark-lantern politicians who have been fighting Senator Boies Penrose because rules that were absolutely binding must now take another tack. Senator Penrose has met the demands upon him with confidence and rare ability. He stands closer to the national administration than any other man in this great nation and the Republicans of Pennsylvania are proud of his disaffection. Incidentally speaking of Senator Penrose the Connelville Courier says:

"The Pennsylvania Keystoneers and Democrats and elements of political opposition generally are fond of calling Senator Penrose a political boss, and perhaps to some extent he is, but he is a great political leader, and that is the real reason why he remains great. Minor politicians are content to follow his leadership because they feel that it is wise 'all the way' what you please, every party has leaders and they remain as such only so long as they 'make good.'

"Senator Penrose has become something of a leader at Washington in such a body of men as that which composes the United States Senate. he could hardly be charged with being a boss, yet it seems that aside from any positions he may hold in the administrative work of the body, his views always command the respect and usually the support of his colleagues."

SHOULD INVESTIGATE.

The taxpayers will do well to carefully investigate the proceedings of the county commissioners in their road improvement scheme. The building of good roads is at all times a most laudable project, but the time the place, the results and the expense are all to be considered. The commissioners have made the mistake of coming in conflict with the State plan, which is a broader and more comprehensive plan of road building, and which divides the expense more equitably. It is within their power to substitute the State plan for the county plan if they see fit, and in view of existing conditions which marks the beginning of State road building, it does not require much business discernment to decide which is the better course to pursue.

It is perfectly right and proper for the county and townships to co-operate in the matter of road building, and the State plan provides ample opportunity for this method. No one objects to the county spending any amount of money possible for road improvements, but there is serious objection to limiting results obtained. The State plan will get more miles of road for the same money at a less expense to the taxpayers and this is good and sufficient reason why it should be substituted for the county plan.

ELECTRIC SPARKS

When that tired feeling known as laziness is accompanied by the feeling like the morning after the night before, it is certain that there has been a night before.

According to a press telegram Lady Johnstone has been in the habit of saying a whole lot. But she is a woman and a woman's prerogative is talking.

While boxing may not be as dangerous a game as automobile racing still there is always the chance that a man might get hit hard enough to cause him to move away from this mortal coil.

A clergyman says that no clergyman can marry on $1,200. By that he doubtless wishes us to suppose that when he had the nuptial knot tied he was making at least $1,200.99 a year.

Cold waves seem to have about as much difficulty getting about in hot weather as fat people. Anyhow they don't very often make their appearance.

Those who complain about hot weather now are the same persons who will complain about the cold weather next winter. (Notice—We have said that twice before.)

Brooklyn is determined not to let St. Louis get ahead of it in any way. St. Louis baseball fans threw pop bottles and other things too numerous to mention at the umpire. When chance offered so did Brooklyn.

Instead of throwing things at the umpire why don't people overwhelm him with kindness? For instance instead of being presented with pop bottles he might be presented with a handsome purse, a watch box, a watch or something like that.

Did you ever notice that when a man is presented with a watch, it always costs more than the watch you wear?

A girl likes to ride on these new fangled roller coasters so she can show her courage by clinging to the man nearest her.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

"Billy" Sunday the evangelist, does certainly get the people's 'goat,' to use a slang expression," said a traveling man at one of the local hotels today. "My route is through the western part of the State, including New Castle and Erie, the two last places where Sunday has held revivals. He certainly had the New Castle people going all right, and he has cut about the same swath in Erie McKeesport and Johnstown except to have Sunday to hold revivals, and the people there are all agitated over the prospects. In Johnstown it was expected to build a tabernacle on the commons, but the council tied on a vote for permission, and now, I am told the people there are going to make it a political issue and try to elect a council this fall that will grant the necessary permission, as the date is some time yet in the future. At McKeesport it is stated that the liquor people will put up a hot fight against Sunday, and interpose all obstacles possible, but that is what the great evangelist likes—a fight. It was stated that Erie would be the hardest proposition Sunday ever tackled, and the start seemed to indicate a failure, but I notice in this morning's paper that Sunday winds up his revival there with 5,312 conversions, and a collection of $12,000. When I was in Erie during my last two trips Sunday was having things about his own way, and it will take a strong combination to down him the way the people are feeling now in this part of the State."

"The greatest school for salespeople that ever existed in this section was the store of 'Billy' Sample in Allegheny, which was one of the prominent department stores of the Pittsburgh district twenty or thirty years ago," said W. C. Clark of the mercantile firm of Kirk and Clark, in speaking of store methods a day or two ago. "A salesman who passed through Sample's hands was a good one, and I venture to say that the best sales people in Pittsburgh today at the heads of departments were of Sample's training. Sample was a Scotchman with many eccentricities, one of which was that no salesman or sales girl was permitted to let a customer leave the counter without making a sale. One who did so was called a 'swap,' and four 'swaps' a day made a clerk eligible for dismissal. Mr. Sample, when he saw a new clerk on duty would appear in the guise of a customer. If he found the novice measured up to requirements he would call for ten yards of the goods, and watch to see how it was measured. If the clerk was accurate in this respect, Sample would stop proceedings and disclose his identity. One day he struck a new fellow who was on to the game, and before he could stop him the clerk had the goods cut off, folded and was asking for directions for delivery. Sample was not successful after his death. It was a hard school for sales people, as Sample was most exacting, but jobs were not so plenty those days, and clerks could not be as independent then as now."

Mark Antony's Mistake.

At a performance of "Julius Caesar" at Hurst college, England, Mark Antony made a mistake when the dead body of Caesar was brought in. He apostrophized the fallen hero with impassioned eloquence, and the audience felt acutely for the poor citizens, who were all presumably horror struck and overcome with grief, when Antony gently, but firmly, grasped, as he thought, the face cloth and slowly, very slowly, began to draw it back. Just then an excited whisper came from the other end of the corpse. "This end, you fool!" But Antony was inexorably wrapped in grief. He persevered and disclosed to the intently gazing audience Julius Caesar's boots.

"Why, Willie," said one of them to the four-year-old son of the congressman, "how much you resemble your father?"

Dining car waiters on railroads in India are barefooted natives in long white gowns held in at the waist by a broad band, their heads wrapped up in puggrees (a light scarf). The dinner service, says an English paper is rough and coarse and the price higher than in this country. Most of the food served comes in tins. Between courses dishes are piled on the floor. India is a land of contrasts, and this contrast between the dirty black feet and the dirty white dishes is one of the things to which the traveler gets accustomed, but never reconciled.

would tend to warp the judgment, relying only on the evidence that goes to make up the ideal official.

When John H. Bowers announced his intention to go before the Republican primaries for the nomination there is no doubt that the general impression, among the many that know him, was "there is a man who has all the qualifications for the office." That he is the embodiment of them all, is patent to hosts of friends and acquaintances throughout Washington county and particularly to those in Charleroi, where he has lived and toiled from the earliest days of the chartered town. His was the first business of its kind launched in Charleroi and as the years went by his business progressed until the present time finds it a model of its kind, well appointed and showing evidences of thriftiness that is apparent of once. This reference to his business is merely a sidelight by which can be depicted the business acumen and ability which go to make up a successful business man and which the thoughtful demand in candidates for county treasurer.

JOHN H. BOWERS.

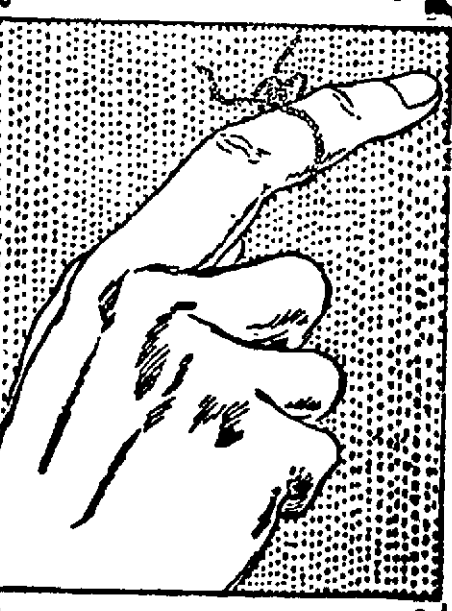

Mr. Bowers has not been selfish while building up a business, but along with his private interests, he has given the best that was in him for the advancement of the borough. He has been a servant of the people, finding good ground for his peculiar talents as member of the first town council, treasurer of the borough, school director, and not least as a leader in the Merchants' Association, where he has invariably been chosen to lead to successful termination projects of importance to the town. Charleroi feels that he has always rendered a good account on his stewardship.

Perhaps Mr. Bower's career would not have been nearly so successful had he not from the outset established himself as a firm friend of the laboring class. In them he sees the keystone of the community and he holds their respect and has their fullest confidence.

Mr. Bowers' credentials as a Republican will pass the inspection of the most critical. He has been a politician only in the best meaning of the word, doing his duty only as any right minded American citizen should, advocating and practicing the square deal, condemning all betrayal of trust, by party or others, in short participating in politics along the cleanest lines.

If strong individualism is of any consequence; if unassailable character has any weight; and if a long, honorable and successful business career is of any moment, Mr. Bowers will receive such recognition by the Republicans of Washington county, irrespective of location, that he will easily be the man

BELLS OF THE BASTILLE.

They Are Hung in a Little Rustic Building in Paris.

The bells of the Bastille are still in Paris in a little court in Avenue d'Eylau, where they are hung in a little rustic building. There is no doubt as to their authenticity. They carry in relief their story. "These three bells were made by Louis Cheron, founder to the court, for the royal Bastille in the year 1761." Fleurs-de-lis, crosses and sacred figures adorn the legend. The bells formerly were part of the clock installed by M. Sartine in 1764. In the archives de l'arsenal are all the documents relative to the work.

On July 14, 1789, the bells of the assaultants stopped the clock of the Bastille at a quarter past 5 in the evening. Falloy, who demolished the prison, three days later received the order to deliver the clock to the commander of the Paris militia, who transported it no one knows whither. After the revolution the bells were found at the foundries of Rouilly-sur-Andelle, in Eure, where, under the reign of terror, the church bells were converted into money. The proprietor of the foundry was interested in these relics and did not melt them. He installed the three bells in his works with the movement of the clock. By this time the dial plate had disappeared and the figures which belonged to it. Some years ago the bells were transferred from the Rouilly foundry to Paris, and there they have since remained.—London Globe.

Edward Everett.

Edward Everett was one of the most purely literary of all American orators. Among the more eminent scholars and statesmen of our land no one has ever been more deservedly honored for intellectual power, purity of character, public and private, and for clearness and perception of judgment than Everett. To the efforts of Edward Everett more than to any other one person is to be credited the raising of funds sufficient to purchase the home of Washington at Mount Vernon. He delivered a lecture on the character of that great man more than a hundred times and gave the proceeds to the Ladies' Mount Vernon association. He personally placed over $60,000 in the treasury. It is probable that his oratory won for benevolent purposes at least $100,000.—St. Louis Republic.

MODERN BUSINESS.

The Big Jobs Demand Hustlers Who Are Gentlemen.

A notable change has taken place in American business methods within the last decade. Increasingly men of large affairs are asking when a young man is recommended for a big job, "Is he a gentleman?" This is significant in two ways. It means that the big business men are themselves gentlemen and like to deal with men who speak their own language and that American business methods have grown to be such that the gentleman has an advantage.

There was a time when a man who was a hustler could be a cad if he liked and it did not hurt his chances much. But that time has passed. The big business men of today want young men who are tactful, intelligent, independent, yet unassuming; who would know how to talk to a diplomat and be at home in a good club; who could be trusted to behave kindly, honorably and discreetly in any situation of life; who, in short, have as their ideal the old, never changing ideal of the gentleman. Not everybody can define it, but everybody knows it at sight.

The gentleman, in short, can work along the line of least resistance, and that is why he is wanted.—Bookkeeper

Plenty in Reserve.

A man who had been fighting got two black eyes. Next morning he met a friend, who exclaimed:

"Why, Jack, where have you been? You've got two black eyes!"

"That's nothing," he replied. "I could have got plenty more, only I had no place to put them."

Pleasant.

Strange Guest—I don't know half the people in the room. Just look at that woman over there—the crossed eyes, red headed one. And some one told me she was married. Don't you think the fellow was a fool? Other Guest (meekly)—I know he was. I'm him.—Baltimore American.

Talked Too Much.

Wife (reproachfully)—You forget how you once breathed your love in my ear and promised that my every wish should be gratified. Hub—No, I don't, but I wish now I'd followed the hygienic rule of keeping my mouth shut while breathing.—Boston Transcript.

Eddystone Lighthouse.
The Eddystone lighthouse, fourteen miles off Plymouth, England, and exposed to the full fury of the southwestern seas, was built by Winstanley in four seasons. Begun in 1696 and finished in 1700, it was destroyed in the dreadful storm of 1703. The second structure was completed in 1709 and destroyed in 1755, after it had faced the wind and the waves for something over forty-six years. The third tower, finished in 1759 and condemned in 1878, was followed by the present wonderful structure, which since 1882 has been defying the elements while it flashed out over the terrible waters its saving light. Since the brave Winstanley built the first Eddystone lighthouse similar safeguards have sprung up like magic sentinels along all the coasts of all the oceans, and those who sail upon the great deeps of the earth are forewarned and forearmed against the dangers which threaten them.—New York American.

A Deadly Weapon.

There is a horrible weapon favored by certain of the hill tribes in the Ghauts of western Asia, which consists of four sharp, curved blades hidden under the fingers and securely held in place by rings passing over two of them. With such a contrivance Shivaji, the Maratha hero, is credited with having disemboweled his Mohammedan overlord when making a pretense of rendering him his humble submission. The vagnaks ("tiger's claws"), as they are called, are distinctly more brutal than their western prototype, the "knuckle duster."—Wide World Magazine.

A Model.

Mr. Jones came home at an unseasonably hour the other night and was surprised to see Mrs. Jones sitting up for him below stairs, with no other light than that of the gas lamp, which faced the door, to keep her company.

"M-M-Marie," he said huskily, "you shouldn't sit up so late when I'm out on business."

As Mrs. Jones did not answer him, he continued in an alarmed voice:

"Shorry, m'dear, but it's last time—tell you I'm sorry. Won't she speak to me?"

At this moment Mrs. Jones called from above stairs:

"Mr. Jones, who are you talking to at this hour of the night?"

"Thash what I'd like to know m-m-myself," stammered Jones.

Mrs. Jones hastened downstairs, lamp in hand. When she saw the situation she laughed in spite of being very angry.

"It's the model," she said—"the model I bought today to fit my dresses on."

"Yes, thash so," said Jones tipsily. "Model woman—didn't talk back—make some fellow good wife."

Only on the Outside.

"Why, Ethel, you don't mean to tell me you want to marry that baldheaded Professor Wiseman?"

"It is true he is bald," said Ethel.

"But think how many young men today are bald on the inside of the heads."

"It's the model," she said—"the model I bought today to fit my dresses on."

"Yes, thash so," said Jones tipsily. "Model woman—didn't talk back—make some fellow good wife."

Whistler as a Horseman.
Boggs, a cadet cavalry officer at West Point academy, was an assistant in the riding hall. On one occasion he overheard Whistler, who thoroughly disliked to ride, objecting strenuously to the horse brought for his use. The horse, he argued, was too heavily built and much too large for a man of his size. Whistler, with much vehemence, urged the man next him to "swap." The man with whom he wished to exchange horses was of muscular build and a "pretty generous size" and his horse a lightweight animal, so it seemed to Whistler that it would be a "most fitting exchange."

"Oh, don't swap! Don't you swap, Mr. Whistler!" cried the dragon.

"Yours is a war horse, sir!"

"A war horse?" exclaimed Whistler. "That settles it. I certainly don't want him."

"Yes, you do, sir," reiterated the man. "He's a war horse, I tell you, for he'd rather die than run."—Century.

Robespierre's Style of Dress.

Robespierre's manner of dress, even at the period when the demagogues affected the slovenliness and disorder of indigence in order to flatter the people, was clean, decent and precise as that of a man who respects himself in the eyes of others. His white powdered hair, turned up in clusters over his temples; a bright blue coat buttoned over his hips, open over the breast to display a white vest; short yellow colored breeches, white stockings and shoes with silver buckles, formed his invariable costume during the whole of his public life. It was said that he desired by thus never varying the style or color of his garments to make the same impression in the sight and imagination of the people as a medal of his face would have caused.—Lamartine's "History of the Girondists."

A Famous Paris Sign.

Paris is a city of curious signboards. One of the most remarkable ones representing a tobaccoist's sign at 55 Rue du Chateau-d'Eau, which has been here ever since 1870. It is riddled with holes made by the bullets of the Prussians, and the occupant of the shop states that so far as he is aware it is the only public relic of the Franco-Prussian war in evidence in the streets of Paris today.

"My sign," he added, "brings me plenty of customers. You have no idea, monsieur, of the number of English and American tourists who pass this way and drop into my place for a cigar or a box of matches merely in order to have a word with me about my bullet riddled enseigne. I wouldn't part with it for anything."—Wide World Magazine.

The News by Windmill.

In certain parts of Holland births, marriages and deaths are frequently announced by the windmills instead of in the newspapers. When a miller gets married he stops his mill with the arms of the wheel in an oblique position and with the sails unfurled. His friends and guests often do likewise with their mills in token of the ceremony. To indicate a birth the wheel is stopped with the arms in a slanting position, but at a more acute angle than for a marriage and with the two upper sails unfurled. Should a miller die the sails of his mill are all furled and the wheel is turned round until the arms assume an upright cross, in which position they are left until after the funeral has taken place.—Harper's Weekly.

A Comparison.

Two friends met one day after a long absence. One of them had a very ruddy complexion, and his nose was carmine. The other looked into his face and said:

"Ah, John, I doot—"

But John said he was not to judge by appearances, as he only drank one glass of beer in a day.

"Oh, weel," said the other, "yer face, perhaps, is like our gas meter—it registers mair than it consumes."—London Answers.

Portrait—A Game.

In the game called portrait one person leaves the room while the others choose the name of some one they all know. The person on re-entering the room has to guess the name selected by asking questions, which must be answered only by "Yes" or "No." For instance, "Is it a man?" "No." "Is it a woman?" "Yes." "Is she married?" "No." "Is she tall?" "Has she fair hair?" "Are her eyes blue?" "Is she in this room?" and so on till the portrait is recognized.

Sometimes the company choose the one who went outside to be the portrait, which naturally makes the guessing rather more difficult.

What Feet Are These?

There's a foot that's played all over our land.

There's a foot that is often seen in the sand.

There's a foot that crosses many a stream and a foot we sometimes strike in a dream.

There's a foot that marches in rain or shine.

And a foot that has measured many a line.

There's a foot which makes for our feet a rest.

And a foot which is heard from east to west.

Answers.—Football, footprint, footbridge, footboard, foot soldier, footsle, footstool, footstep.

When leaves fall they are actually cut off from the stems by a layer of cork that forms across the base of their stalks. No nourishment is left in the dead leaf, but only the waste products of vitality, of which the tree is well rid.

Meteoric Showers.

How many know that the earth is getting larger each year from the fall of meteoric matter on its surface and that such matter is of no small weight? One hundred tons a day is the estimate made by Young. This, he says, would make a layer one inch thick over the entire earth in 1,000,000,000 years if we assume this meteoric matter to be three times as heavy as water. But another effect has to take place at the same time. As the earth is getting larger the force of gravity gets larger, and we are being attracted with more force toward the sun. But the centrifugal force keeping us away from the sun gets much greater, too, and, in fact, more so than the sun's gravity, the result being that we are gradually increasing our distance from the glowing orb.—New York Tribune.

He'd Have Revenge.

Juggins—Who was it that said if he could make the songs of the people he wouldn't care who made the laws? Muggins—Don't know. But if he's the chap who's making the songs of the people nowadays I'd just like to have the making of the laws a little while. That's all.—Red Hen.

Doubt or Dyspepsia.

Scott—The difference between a poor man and a millionaire—Mott—Yes, I know all about it. One worries over his next meal and the other over his last.—Exchange.

W. A. PRESBYS ARE THRESHED BY EPISCOPALS

Heavy Score Rolled up By McCloskey's Players During Struggle

OPPOSING PLAYERS HELP

One of the most awe inspiring defeats of the season was tendered the Washington Avenues by the Episcopal Monday night largely through the fault of the Washington Avenues themselves. Abundant criticism of the methods of playing might be dwelt on at great length, but suffice it to say that they suffered for their misses at the rate of 12 scores to 2.

Fontanesi essayed to pitch, and started off well for the Washington Avenues, but in the second inning he became rather disgusted by the support given him and concluded he might just as well let the Episcopal fatten their batting averages. Consequently the Episcopal got 14 hits. He was successfully opposed by Bragg, who allowed six hits. The Episcopal scored one in the first seven in the next and four in the fifth. Johnson got the first one when he was walked and went the rest of the way on an error and two singles. Roberts, Bragg, Johnson, Kuhn, Cratty, Guder and Jenkins were the run getters on five hits, three costly errors, two fielder's choices, three stolen bases and a number of misjudgements. The run getters in the fifth were Bragg, Johnson, Kuhn and Cratty on three singles and two errors which let in two, and a sacrifice fly.

Carmell was the run getter for the Washington Avenues in the fourth and sixth. In the fourth he got on base through a fielder's choice, went to third on a single and pulled off a delayed steal home. He singled in the sixth and went second on a single, third on an error and pulled off another delayed steal home. Score:

The Mystic Seven.
A certain fond father sent his son to the University of Pennsylvania last fall. As a farewell piece of advice he told the young man that "his success was almost assured, since both the word success and your name contain seven letters." The midyear examinations, however, proved to be his doom, and he was compelled to return home. "Well," said his father, "didn't you keep in mind what I told you about the seven letters?" "I did that, father," answered the boy, "but you must remember that there are also seven letters in failure."

THREE PROTESTS ARE IGNORED BY CHURCH LEAGUE

Executive Committee Transacts Important Business—Two New Umpires

Three protests were ignored and two umpires were appointed in addition to other important business being transacted at the weekly meeting of the Executive Committee of the Church League Monday night. The protests were those of the Episcopal on the Fourth of July game with the Catholic's and the Christians of a Lutheran game, and the Washington Avenues of a Lutheran game with them. Prof. I. T. Daniel and J. W. Mathias were named the umpires to act for the rest of the season, their names having been suggested by managers as the most suitable.

The matter of a game between a picked team from Crafton-Ingram and a picked team from the Charleroi Church league was placed on file. The secretary was instructed to notify managers that their pro rata share for the purchase of an umpire's chest protector must be paid by next Monday evening. A committee will look after the placing of barrels and buckets for water to be placed at both ends of the grandstand. The resignation of S. R. Hawkins, representing the Baptists which was received, as he is going away this month. D. C. Whitlatch's name was presented by Mr. Hawkins as his successor.

Deals were approved as follows: Washington Avenues added E. LeClerc, E. Michiner, George Michiner, Frank Arrison, James Baker and Lee Claybaugh; released Henry Carmell, Thomas Urwin, Mike Walchuck P. Nunundi, P. W. Jenks, Mike Mitchell. Baptists, added Van Carson, Henry Carmell and Bert McIlvaine, released, William Coulter. Episcopal, added Robt. Hess, released, Charles Hott. Catholics added Paul Hess, released A. Patridge. Christians, added, James Provance, released, Ben Cornell.

Made Him Feel Older.
The late Archbishop Ryan illuminated every subject he discussed, and once at a banquet in Philadelphia he illuminated strangely the subject of old age.

"We ourselves," he said, "never seem to grow old. Our hearts remain young, and even our faces in the glass don't look old, as do our friends' faces. One day on Chestnut street a very withered and bent graybeard accosted me. "Why," he said, "don't you remember me? We were classmates at Carlow college." Archbishop Ryan paused, then added whimsically: "I was taken aback. I was shocked. I knew he was my age, but I had no idea I was his."—Washington Star.

How "Thon" Would Work.
"Thon" is the word which has been suggested for use as an English pronoun of common gender, a luxury which the English language has thus far had the fortitude to forego. It was considered suitable for English because it came from the Greek. Its use may be illustrated as follows: If a parent desires to spank thon's (his or her, as the case may be) child thon (he or she) should take thon (him, her or it) across thon's knee. Thon thon should remove thon's slipper, and a thon complaining to the child the representative thon's conduct.

the slipper to that thon's anatomy which thon's memorial has been dedicated to thon's cause. It is easily seen from the above thon's effects great clarification. Thon's motto.

Early Roman Laws.
The very earliest Roman laws were those contained in the so called "Papirian code," but of these but little is known. The next in order are those of the twelve tablets, compiled by the Decemvirs at the beginning of the fourth century of the city's history. About B. C. 350. These famous laws consisted of a revision of the then existing laws, with some new ones which, according to tradition, had been imported from Greece by three commissioners who had been sent to Athens for the purpose of collecting such laws and customs as might be useful to the people of Rome. The new code, when completed, was engraved on twelve tablets of ivory or brass and set up in public.

How They Fight Fire in Turkey.
This is the method of fighting fire in Turkey. In the center of Constantinople a high watchtower has been erected. When the sun in the tower sees a blaze the alarm is sounded and the firemen are called to their posts. They have horses they proceed very quickly to hitch them to the engines. The engine and trot to the fire, but in no cases they have no horses, and the men drag the engines through the streets at a walk. They do not hurry to attach the hose to the hydrant. The captain first finds the owner of the building that is in danger of destruction and finds out how much he will pay to have the fire put out. If the blaze is beyond control the captain approaches the owners of surrounding property and bargains with them for their protection, and of course they pay him liberally.—New York Post.

Ouida Out of Sorts.
Ouida in a decidedly pessimistic mood appears in Lady Dorothy Nevill's reminiscences. In 1887 Ouida sent to Lady Dorothy a card bearing the following "jubilant epitaph": "Full half a century of measures small, Weak with weak words, weak wars, and that is all." It is amazing that Ouida could even for a moment have lapsed into such dull snappishness. Lady Dorothy's ascription of the foolish card to "feelings of depression" is doubtless just.—New York Tribune.

Planning Ahead.
"Theater parties," said the prospective bride, "will cost about $200 annually, flowers as much more and bonbons, say, $100. Certainly we can marry on $600 a year." "And have a snug surplus," suggested her dad, "for such incidentals as grub and clothes and house rent."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Still Possible.
"Uncle, can't I be a pirate when I grow up?" "Sure you can, son. What do you want to pirate—books or plays?"—Cincinnati Courier-Journal.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS ARE STILL MUCH AT SEA

Will Open Bids But Are Undecided Just How to Proceed

ASPHALTUM MAY BE TRIED

Costs Too Much to Keep Up Roads By Old System --Law is Drawn

The county commissioners will open and tabulate bids on a number of county roads tomorrow. They are considerably at sea in regard to the proposition as several of the stretches of the roads the grand jury approved on petition of the commissioners are embraced in the State Highway plan, and the county officials are somewhat leary over the political effect of having to open money for building roads which the State will build and maintain free of cost to the county. The county commissioners it is stated, have been communicating with E. M. Bigelow, State Commissioner of Highways, in the hope of getting a compromise or promise of a rebate in case the county goes ahead and builds the roads, but thus far they have gotten no satisfaction. They are now between the devil and the deep sea. If they go ahead and build the roads in the State plan it will show them up as spending the money of the county unnecessarily, and if they hold the roads up until some understanding is reached with the State, or leave them for the latter to build the communities which have been promised the construction of the roads this year will be sore and this is likely to result disastrously in the political campaign of the present board of commissioners. An effort is being made at the county seat to convey the impression to the public that the cost will not be so very great if the county goes ahead and builds the roads, and that as they are in the State plan, the Commonwealth will be obliged to take over the roads and maintain them, thus relieving the county. This would let the commissioners get out of the hole, notwithstanding the fact that the county taxpayers would be the loser, and the process might involve many complications likely to cost the county still more.

The commissioners are also anxious for bids for resurfacing the Farn roads that have already been constructed by the county. This action is but another argument why the county should have made the road improvements under the Sprout law instead of under the Flinn law. As it is the county bears the entire expense of repairing the roads, whereas under the Sprout law the State would bear part of this expense.

It is stated that the commissioners are about to try the experiment of surfacing the roads with asphaltum, as the macadam roads constructed by the county have not stood up under the natural traffic. This is not surprising, as when the county began the construction of the Flinn roads it was a political deal pure and simple, and little attention was paid to scientific principles of construction. The roads cost so much in building that the county was unable to keep them in proper repair, and many of them were permitted to become badly worn and damaged before repairs were made, which added to the extravagance of the project and the burden of the taxpayers.

It may not be generally known that the Flinn road law by which counties can build and maintain roads exclusively, was amended at the last session of the Legislature, for the express purpose, it is stated of increasing the rate of interest on road bonds issued under provisions of the law. As Washington county is about the only other county in the State interested outside of Allegheny county, for whom the Flinn law was passed, it is asserted that the bill amending the Flinn law was drawn up at Washington, in order to permit the commissioners to make their political play on "good roads" to help their re-nomination along. The old Flinn law limited the interest on road bonds to four per cent and the commissioners found it difficult to sell these bonds, particularly as the law did not provide for the payment of the State tax of four mills. This latter obstacle was also removed by a bill formulated at the county seat and introduced and put through by Representative J. B. Holland. This bill gave the commissioners the power to pay the State tax of four mills on the dollar of the road bonds, and now, with the amendment to the Flinn law increasing the rate of interest on road bonds to five per cent, the interest on these bonds is increased to five and four-tenths per cent, to the county, whereas, under the old Flinn law it was only three and six-tenths per cent to the purchasers, the rate to the county being four per cent.

It was a clever scheme for the commissioners to flash the "good roads" project on the eve of the primary, which decidedly bears the ear marks of the fine Italian hand of C. E. Carothers, and it might have been pulled off without arousing any suspicion as to its object but for the comprehensive State Road plan of Governor John K. Tener. The commissioners jumped in and planned to spend $857,000 for improving roads in the county, but when it was shown that the State would spend from $2,500,000 to $4,000,000 in the county in addition to the townships being willing to spend as much more as the county under State aid, which would be obtained as quickly as the amount of expenditures by the commissioners, it was readily seen that the county taxpayers would be getting the hot end of the poker in the deal. How the commissioners will pull out of the hole they are in now remains to be seen.

WILL HAVE LOTS OF FEATURES AT PICNIC

Search to be Made for Jimmy Valentine at St. Jerome's Outing at Eldora Park on Wednesday

WOMEN TO BE IN CHARGE OF BOOTHS--GOOD PROGRAM

Final preparations were made today for the annual picnic and outing to be held Wednesday at Eldora Park by St. Jerome's church. There will be features a plenty, and a day of rare enjoyment is promised.

Special cars will convey Sunday school children to the park free of charge. These children will assemble at St. Jerome's church at 10 o'clock. Dinner and supper will be taken.

One of the chief features of the day will be the search for Jimmy Valentine. This noted character for whom Pittsburghers have been searching, will be on the ground during the afternoon, and to the one who captures him, will be awarded $25. County Detective William McCleary has promised to come and aid in the search.

There will be sports in the afternoon, including a ball game between two teams from the church. All the park amusements will be running and each child will be provided with a certain number of tickets for them.

Another feature will be a baby show. A prize will be given to the baby adjudged the prettiest. M. T. Crowley is to be the chief judge. Women of the church will have booths from which all manner of things will be sold, the proceeds to go to the church fund. Dancing will be a feature of the evening. Special cars will be provided for the return trip.

Supper will be served from 5 to 8 o'clock p. m. for 50 cents. A large number of tickets have already been sold, and this feature will not be one of the mere incidentals. The ladies of the congregation have the reputation as first class caterers, and are prepared to serve a bountiful repast. There will be "something doing" out of the ordinary all the time, and visitors will not be permitted to suffer from ennui.

CHANGE MAY BE MADE IN FIRE LIMIT BOUNDARIES

Council Will Hear Matter Discussed by Interested Persons Anyway, and Definite Action May Follow

Following a discussion at some length of the fire limit ordinance and matters pertaining to it, council Monday night at a called meeting took action to the effect that the matter of changing the limit from Third to Fourth street, and from Seventh to Sixth street would be considered Tuesday night. At this meeting all interested persons are invited and expected to be present to give expression to their sentiments on the matter.

There is an ordinance now in force which prohibits the erection of frame structures within a certain boundary. Third street is the boundary on the south and Seventh street on the north. This ordinance was passed some time ago.

The discussion Monday night was brought about by a request of Albert

Sphar who is now conducting Royle's livery barn to build an addition 36 by 80 feet at the rear of his barn. This structure was according to his plans to be constructed of frame. There was a somewhat heated discussion of the matter and then a motion was put by Councilman A. O. Davis, and seconded by Councilman C. O. Frye that the matter be laid on the table until the next meeting which will be on next Tuesday evening.

At the same time it is probable that an ordinance re-establishing the fire limits will be presented, repealing the old ordinance now in force. If it passes it will do away with a lot of contention caused by people who wish to put up frame structures within the given boundaries.

It is thought however, that such an ordinance will meet with considerable opposition.

CHARLEROI MAN FOR TREASURER

John H. Bowers Makes Formal Announcement of His Candidacy

The office of treasurer in any county is conceded by all to be one of the most important within the gift of the people. The voters of a critical mind demand that an aspirant for whom they cast their ballots shall be one whose character is unassailable, whose integrity and honesty have never been impeached and whose business ability is of the highest order. Character (and its attributes) is a prime virtue, but unless a candidate, particularly one for county treasurer, is imbued with the business ability of the best kind he is lacking in one of the essentials and is plainly disqualified. The choosing of a man for this important office is distinctively a business proposition and should be viewed with a calm and considerate mind, casting aside petty animosities, personal dislikes and everything that

IS BACK FROM WESTERN LEAGUE

Walter Taylor returned this week from Chicago, Ill., where he has been playing the outfield with the Chicago Lelands, in the Chicago Western League. Taylor was making good, and was the clean-up man on the batting order. Trouble with the umpire in a game at Louisville, and a subsequent fine which was imposed on him, led to him quitting the team. In the league were clubs from Chicago, Louisville, Kansas City, St. Louis, West Baden, Evansville, Indiana and Columbus.

SCHOOL BOARD SETS BOND FOR THE TAX COLLECTOR

Has Mania For Running Away

Bentleyville Lad Escapes From Training School and is Sent to Morganza

Morris Rosenbloom, the eight-year-old boy of Bentleyville, formerly of Monessen, who has a mania for running away, was again in juvenile court Monday. He was taken to the Oakdale training school a week ago by Miss Christman, the probation officer. He did not remain long, slipping away and making his way to Pittsburgh, remained in Pittsburgh overnight, then went to Monongahela and managed to reach his home at Bentleyville last Friday. He was at once taken back to the detention home. The lad was originally charged with incorrigibility. Small but bright he escaped through a window of the detention home, went to Pittsburgh then to Monongahela and to Bentleyville. Judge McIlvaine sent the boy to Morganza.

New School Code Changes Method of Naming Amount

Change in Effect at High School--Two Resignations Accepted

For the first time in the history of the Charleroi schools the bond of the tax collector was fixed by the school board Monday night at an adjourned meeting. Heretofore the bond of the tax collector has been set by the judge of the county but the new school code which was passed by the last Legislature and signed by Governor Tenor, changed the law so that now it is up to the school board to place the bond as they see fit. The bond was set at $35,000.

Resignations of Prof. D. C. Willard as principal of High School and of Miss Grace Zillafro as principal of the Fifth street schools were accepted. Prof. Willard has accepted a position as principal of the New Bloomfield academy and Miss Zillafro as a principal in the Dunbar schools.

Prof. W. A. Swick was elected to the position of High School principal. He was a teacher in High School last year. There was no other teacher elected to fill that vacancy. Miss Lard was elected to fill the place left vacant by the resignation of Miss Zillafro.

Two new teachers were elected for grade positions, Miss Emma Watkins of Brownsville and Miss Edna Gibson of Washington.

A number of bills were accepted and ordered paid and reports were heard from various officials. The commission for the tax collector was set at 2 per cent on face and 5 per cent for collections made with a percent added.

MODERN BUSINESS.

The Big Jobs Demand Hustlers Who Are Gentlemen.

A notable change has taken place in American business methods within the last decade. Increasingly men of large affairs are asking when a young man is recommended for a big job, "Is he a gentleman?" This is significant in two ways. It means that the big business men are themselves gentlemen and like to deal with men who speak their own language and that American business methods have grown to be such that the gentleman has an advantage.

There was a time when a man who was a hustler could be a cad if he liked and it did not hurt his chances much. But that time has passed. The big business men of today want young men who are faithful intelligent independent, yet unassuming, who would know how to talk to a diplomat and be at home in a good club, who could be trusted to behave kindly, honorably and discreetly in any situation of life, who, in short, have as their ideal the old, never changing ideal of the gentleman. Not everybody can denote it, but everybody knows it at sight.

The gentleman, in short, can work along the line of least resistance, and that is why he is wanted.—Bookkeeper

Plenty In Reserve.

A man who had been fighting got two black eyes. Next morning he met a friend, who exclaimed:

"Why, Jack, where have you been? You've got two black eyes!"

"That's nothing," he replied. "I could have got plenty more, only I had no place to put them."

Pleasant.

Strange Guest: I don't know half the people in the room. Just look at that woman over there—the cross-eyed, red-headed one. And some one told me she was married. Don't you think the fellow was a fool? Other Guest (weakly)—I know he was. I'm him.—Baldmore American

Talked Too Much.

Wife (reproachfully)—You forget how you once breathed your love in my ear and promised that my every wish should be gratified. Hub—No, I don't, but I wish now I'd followed the hygienic rule of keeping my mouth shut while breathing.—Boston Transcript

Eddystone Lighthouse.
The Eddystone lighthouse, fourteen miles off Plymouth, England and exposed to the full fury of the southwestern seas, was built by Winstanley in four seasons. Begun in 1696 and finished in 1700, it was destroyed in the dreadful storm of 1703. The second structure was completed in 1709 and destroyed in 1755, after it had faced the wind and the waves for something over forty-six years. The third tower, finished in 1759 and condemned in 1878, was followed by the present wonderful structure which since 1882 has been defying the elements while it flashed out over the terrible waters its saving light. Since the brave Winstanley built the first Eddystone lighthouse similar safeguards have sprung up like magic sentinels along all the coasts of all the oceans, and those who sail upon the great deeps of the earth are forewarned and forearmed against the dangers which threaten them.—New York American.

A Deadly Weapon.

There is a horrible weapon favored by certain of the hill tribes in the Ghauts of western Asia, which consists of four sharp, curved blades held under the fingers and securely held in place by rings passing over two of them. With such a contrivance Shiban, the British agent, was once with having disemboweled his Mohammedan overlord when making a pretense of rendering him his humble submission. The ragnaks ("tiger's claws"), as they are called, are distinctly more brutal than their western prototype, the "knuckle duster."—Wide World Magazine.

A Model.

Mr. Jones came home at an unseasonable hour the other night and was surprised to see Mrs. Jones sitting up for him below stairs with no other light than that of the gas lamp which faced the door, to keep her company.

"M-M-Maria," he said huskily, "you shouldn't sit up late when I'm out on business."

As Mrs. Jones did not answer him he continued in an alarmed voice:

"Shorry, m'dear, but it's last time—tell you I'm sorry. Won't speak to me!"

At this moment Mrs. Jones called from above stairs:

"Mr. Jones—who are you talking to at this hour of the night?"

"Thash what I'd like to know m-m-m-selt," stammered Jones.

Mrs. Jones hastened downstairs lamp in hand. When she saw the situation she laughed in spite of being very angry.

"It's the model," she said.—"the model I bought today to fit my dresses on."

"Yes, thash so," said Jones tipsily. "Model woman—didn't talk back—make some fellow good wife."

"Why, Ethel, you don't mean to tell me you want to marry that baldheaded Professor Wiseman?"

Whistler as a Horseman.

Burns, a cadet cavalry officer at West Point academy, was an assistant in the riding hall. On one occasion he overheard Whistler, who thought he was to ride, objecting strenuously to the horse brought for his use. The horse, he argued, was too heavily built and much too large for a man of his size. Whistler with much vehemence urged the man next him to "swap." The man with whom he wished to exchange horses was of muscular build and a "pretty generous size" and his horse a lightweight animal, so it seemed to Whistler that it would be a "most fitting exchange."

"Oh, don't swap! Don't you swap Mr. Whistler!" cried the dragoon.

"Yours is a war horse, sir!"

"A war horse!" exclaimed Whistler.

"That settles it. I certainly don't want him."

"Yes, you do, sir," reiterated the man.

"He's a war horse, I tell you, for he'd rather die than run."—Century.

Robespierre's Style of Dress.

Robespierre's manner of dress, even at the period when the demagogues affected the slovenliness and disorder of indigence in order to flatter the people, was clean, decent and precise as that of a man who respects himself in the eyes of others. His white powdered hair turned up in curls over his temples; a bright blue coat buttoned over his hips, open over the breast to display a white vest; short yellow colored breeches, white stockings and shoes with silver buckles, formed his invariable costume during the whole of his public life. It was said that he desired by thus never varying the style or color of his garments to make the same impression in the sight and imagination of the people as a medal of his face would have caused.—Lamartine's "History of the Girondists."

A Famous Paris Sign.

Paris is a city of curious signboards, one of the most remarkable ones representing a tobaccoconist's sign at 55 Rue du Chateaud'Eau, which has been here ever since 1870. It is riddled with holes made by the bullets of the Prussians, and the occupant of the shop states that so far as he is aware it is the only public relic of the Franco-Prussian war in evidence in the streets of Paris today.

"My sign," he added "brings me plenty of customers. You have no idea, monsieur, of the number of English and American tourists who pass this way and drop into my place for a cigar or a box of matches mere's in order to have a word with me about my bullet riddled ensigne. I wouldn't part with it for anything."—Wide World Magazine.

The News by Windmill.

In certain parts of Holland births, marriages and deaths are frequently announced by the windmills instead of in the newspapers. When a miller gets married he stops his mill with the arms of the wheel in an oblique position and with the sails unfurled. His friends and guests often do likewise with their mills in token of the ceremony. To indicate a birth the wheel is stopped with the arms in a slanting position, but at a more acute angle than for a marriage and with the two upper sails unfurled. Should a miller die the sails of his mill are all furled and the wheel is turned round until the arms assume an upright cross, in which position they are left until after the funeral has taken place.—Harper's Weekly.

A Comparison.

Two friends met one day after a long absence. One of them had a very ruddy complexion, and his nose was carmine. The other looked into his face and said:

"Ah, John, I do!"

But John said he was not to judge by appearances, as he only drank one glass of beer in a day.

"Oh, well," said the other, "yer face, perhaps, is like our gas meter—it registers more than our gas meter."—London Answers.

Portrait—A Game.

In the game called portrait one person leaves the room while the others choose the name of some one they all know. The person on re-entering the room has to guess the name selected by asking questions, which must be answered only by "Yes" or "No." For instance, "Is it a man?" "No." "Is it a woman?" "Yes." "Is she married?" "No." "Is she tall?" "Has she fair hair?" "Are her eyes blue?" "Is she in this room?" and so on till the portrait is recognized.

Sometimes the company choose the one who went outside to be the portrait, which naturally makes the guessing rather more difficult.

What Feet Are These?

There's a foot that's played all over our land.

There's a foot that is often seen in the sand.

There's a foot that crosses many a stream.

And a foot we sometimes strike in a dream.

There's a foot that marches in rain or shine.

And a foot that has measured many a line.

There's a foot which makes for our feet.

And a foot which is heard from east to west.

Answers.—Football, footprint, footbridge, footpath, foot soldier, foot rule, footstool, footstep.

When leaves fall they are actually cut off from the stems by a layer of cork that forms across the base of their stalks. No nourishment is left in the dead leaf, but only the waste products of vitality, of which the tree is well rid.

Meteoric Showers.

How many know that the earth is getting larger each year from the fall of meteoric matter on its surface and that such matter is of no small weight? One hundred tons a day is the estimate made by Young. This, he says, would make a layer one inch thick over the entire earth in 1,000,000,000 years if we assume this meteoric matter to be three times as heavy as water. But another effect has to take place at the same time. As the earth is getting larger the force of gravity gets larger, and we are being attracted with more force toward the sun. But the centrifugal force keeps us away from the sun gets so than the sun's gravity, the result being that we are gradually increasing our distance from the glowing orb.—New York Tribune

W. A. PRESBYS ARE THRESHED BY EPISCOPALS

Heavy Score Rolled up By McCloskey's Players During Struggle

OPPOSING PLAYERS HELP

One of the most awe inspiring defeats of the season was tendered the Washington Avenues by the Episcopalists Monday night largely through the fault of the Washington Avenues themselves. Abundant criticism of the methods of playing might be dwelt on at great length, but suffice it to say that they suffered for their misses at the rate of 12 scores to 2.

Fontanesi essayed to pitch, and was met by the Washington Avenues, but in the second inning he became rather disgusted by the support given him and concluded he might just as well let the Episcopalists fatten their batting averages. Consequently the Episcopalists got 14 hits. He was successfully opposed by Bragg, who allowed six hits. The Episcopalists scored one in the first seven in the next and four in the fifth. Johnson got the first one when he was walked and went the rest of the way on an error and two singles. Roberts, Bragg, Johnson, Kuhn, Cratty, Guder and Jenkins were the run getters on five hits, three costly errors, two fielder's choices, three stolen bases and a number of misjudgements. The run getters in the fifth were Bragg, Johnson, Kuhn and Cratty on three singles and two errors which let in two, and a sacrifice fly.

Carmell was the run getter for the Washington Avenues in the fourth and sixth. In the fourth he got on base through a fielder's choice, went to third on a single and pulled off a delayed steal home. He singled in the sixth and went second on a single, third on an error and pulled off another delayed steal home. Score:

The Mystic Seven.
A certain fond father sent his son to the University of Pennsylvania last fall. As a farewell piece of advice he told the young man that "his success was almost assured, since both the word success and your name contain seven letters." The midyear examinations, however, proved to be his doom, and he was compelled to return home. "Well," said his father, "didn't you keep in mind what I told you about the seven letters?" "I did that, father," answered the boy, "but you must remember that there are also seven letters in failure."--Philadelphia Times.

THREE PROTESTS ARE IGNORED BY CHURCH LEAGUE

Executive Committee Transacts Important Business--Two New Umpires

Three protests were ignored and two umpires were appointed in addition to other important business being transacted at the weekly meeting of the Executive Committee of the Church League Monday night. The protests were those of the Episcopalists on the Fourth of July game with the Catholics and the Christians of a Lutheran game, and the Washington Avenues of a Lutheran game with them. Prof. I. T. Daniel and J. W. Mathias were named the umpires to act for the rest of the season, their names having been suggested by managers as the most suitable.

The matter of a game between a picked team from Crafton-Ingram and a picked team from the Charleroi Church league was placed on file. The secretary was instructed to notify managers that their pro rata share for the purchase of an umpire's chest protector must be paid by next Monday evening. A committee will look after the placing of barrels and buckets for water to be placed at both ends of the grandstand. The resignation of S. R. Hawkins, representing the Baptists which was received, as he is going away this month. D. C. Whitlatch's name was presented by Mr. Hawkins as his successor.

Deals were approved as follows: Washington Avenues added E. LeClerq, E. Michiner, George Michiner, Frank Arrison, James Baker and Lee Claybaugh; released Henry Carmell, Thomas Urwin, Mike Walchuck, P. Nunundi, P. W. Jenks, Mike Mitchell. Baptists, added Van Carson, Henry Carmell and Bert McIlvaine, released, William Coulter. Episcopalists, added Robt. Hess, released, Charlie Hott. Catholics added Paul Hess, released A. Patridge. Christians, added James Provance, released, Ben Cornell.

Made Him Feel Older.
The late Archbishop Ryan illuminated every subject he discussed, and once at a banquet in Philadelphia he illuminated strangely the subject of old age. "We ourselves," he said, "never seem to grow old. Our hearts remain young, and even our faces in the glass don't look old, as do our friends' faces. One day on Chestnut street a very withered and bent graybeard accosted me. "Why," he said, "don't you remember me? We were classmates at Carlow college." Archbishop Ryan paused, then added whimsically: "I was taken aback. I was shocked. I knew he was my age, but I had no idea I was his."--Washington Star.

How "Thon" Would Work.
"Thon" is the word which has been suggested for use as an English noun of common gender, a luxury which the English language has thus far had the fortitude to forego. It was considered suitable for English because it came from the Greek. Its use may be illustrated as follows: If a parent desires to spank thon's (his or her, as the case may be) child then (he or she) should take thon (him or her) across thon's knee. Then thon should remove thon's slipper, and thon, explaining to the child the reprehensible conduct of thon's conduct, should take thon's slipper to that thon's anatomy which thon's memorial has been dedicated to. It easily be seen from the above that thon's effects great clarification. "Thon" is the word.

Early Roman Laws.
The very earliest Roman laws were those contained in the so called "Papirian code," but of these but little is known. The next in order are those of the twelve tablets, compiled by the Decemvirs at the beginning of the fourth century of the city's history, about B. C. 450. These famous laws consisted of a variety of the then existing laws, with some new ones which, according to tradition, had been imported from Greece by three commissioners who had been sent to Athens for the purpose of collecting such laws and customs as might be useful to the people of Rome. The new code, when completed, was engraved on twelve tablets of ivory or brass and set up in public.

How They Fight Fire in Turkey.
This is the method of fighting fire in Turkey. In the center of Constantinople a high watchtower has been erected. When the alarm is sounded and the firemen are called to their posts, they have horses they proceed very quickly to hitch them to the engines and trot to the fire, but in most cases they have no horses, and so they drag the engines through the streets at a walk. They do not hurry, and with the hose to the hydrant. The alarm bell rings the owner of the building that is in danger of destruction and he calls out how much he will pay to have the fire put out. If the blaze is beyond control the captain approaches the owners of surrounding property and bargains with them for their protection, and of course they pay him liberally.--New York Post.

Ouida Out of Sorts.
Ouida is a decidedly pessimistic mood appears in Lady Dorothy Nevill's reminiscences. In 1887 Ouida sent to Lady Dorothy a card bearing the following "jubilant epitaph": "Full half a century of measures small, Weak wit, weak words, weak wars, and that is all." It is amazing that Ouida could even for a moment have lapsed into such dull snarphishness. Lady Dorothy's ascription of the foolish comment to "feelings of depression" is doubtless just.--New York Tribune.

Planning Ahead.
"Theater parties," said the prospective bride, "will cost about $200 annually, flowers as much more and bonbons, say, $100. Certainly we can marry on $500 a year." "And have a snug surplus," suggested her dad, "for such incidentals as grub and clothes and house rent."--Philadelphia Bulletin.

Still Possible.
"Uncle, can't I be a pirate when I grow up?" "Sure you can, son. What do you want to pirate--books or plays?"--Cleveland Courier-Journal.
